The Harvest.

The past few days of hot weather has worked wonders in ripening the grain. Plenty of help is obtainable, and given two or three weeks more or favourable weather, Bow Island should reap another famous crop. Many of the farmers in the district firmly believe that their crop is fully equal to that of last year, and it is quite possible that the harvest will have a surprise for many of their patrons.

During the past week, there has been talk among the farmers of the appearance of rust in some fields.
Speaking to a well known grower, however, he put this talk down to a few scare-heads. Rust, he said, is present nearly every year, more or less, and he did not think its presence this year was greater in evidence than in former seasons.

In connection with this, a resident of Bow Island gathered some wheat that was alleged to be affected and forwarded it to W. H. Fairfield, of the Dominion Experimental Farm, at Lethbridge. The latter, in his reply, states:—"Replying to your letter of the 26th inst. in regard to the sample of wheat you sent, I may say that without a microscopic examination it would appear that most of the rust is red. If the sample you sent is typical of the field and it is not lodging the damage should not be very material unless there is some dull damp weather favorable to the development of the rust between now and when it is cut."

I would suggest that any field affected in this way should be cut very much sooner than is usually done, and that the grain be threshed as soon as possible.

In an interview with a contemporary, Mr. Fairfield advises the farmers of Southern Alberta to get their cutting started as early as possible. He says that considering the late harvest farmers should not leave their grain until a single day after it is ripe enough to put the binder in it. And he says spring wheat is plenty ripe enough when the heads commence to turn nicely and the straw is ripe from the ground up past the first joint. If wheat is cut at this stage and the binders slowly followed up by the stackers so that the straw will not dry out too quickly, the grain that appears a little on the green side will ripens fine in the stack and will be a little better grade than if allowed to get too ripe. If it is possible to cap-sheat the stacks, so much the better.
This advice is important in view of the fact that frost damage may be expected about September 10.

Letter from the Front.

A letter has just been received in town from C. B. Reynolds, whom many will remember as having preached in this district in connection with the Southern Alberta mission. Mr.
Reynolds, after alluding to the reported death of Mr. Wilkens and the subsequent announcement of his capture and internment in Germany, goes on to say:—

"I wonder how Alberta is getting on. Is it realized in financial circles that this is the chance in centuries for the establishment of glass factories where the glass sand and gas power are available? I have seen exactly two-panes of glass and a few bottles within the last—well, I will not say how long; but if these places are to be rebuilt, the glazier and manufacturer will be as requisite as the mason. If the West is awake, the advent of peace can mean the opening of a new era—the inheritance of a part of Germany's trade."

Mr. Reynolds then goes on to state that Mr. Gripen, another member of the Southern Alberta Mission who enlisted, had a narrow escape, but got off with a slight wound.

A Warning.

That the mails are flooded with literature soliciting liquor trade by firms in British Columbia, that one liquor house in Vancouver is sending out letters and circulars broadcast over Alberta, with an order form attached, which if used would constitute a violation of the Dominion statute which provides that all packages containing liquor must have contents marked plainly on the outside, is the information which is imparted by H. F. Gold, Inspector in the administration of the present provincial liquor act.

Mr. Gold has issued a written and signed statement, warning citizens of this province that the making use of the order form which the Vancouver house is sending out would constitute a violation of the law of the Timothy Seed.

The 1916 crop of Alberta timothy seed would seem to require special facilities for marketing and the following tentative arrangements have been made, subject to change as experience in handling the seed may warrant.

(1) The Dominion Department of Agriculture and the Board of Grain Commissioners agree that the seed and favorably known system for grading, handling and marketing of grain should so far as possible be made available for timothy seed.

(2) For this year the Government Inspection Elevator at Calgary will be fitted for the handling of timothy. Timothy seed will be received in bags, the bags returned to the shipper whose name is contained thereon, farmer's lots being kept separately, though in quantities less than one car load. The seed will be cleaned and graded and warehouse certificates issued for the net weight and grade or grade of seed obtained after cleaning.
The total charge for receiving, cleaning, elevating, sacking and loading exclusive will be $5. per car. Large lots will be provided for extra seed, No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and rejected grades.
After cleaning, farmer's lots of timothy may not retain its identity but may be bulked with other lots of the same grade.

(3) Alberta timothy seed growers will be well to remember that success of two million bushels of timothy seed are produced annually in the North Central States. That this seed is marketed, commencing about Aug.
15th and that agents of the large American seed houses carrying Eastern Canada, taking orders during the month of November, December and January, for seed to be delivered the following spring. It is therefore highly desirable that Alberta timothy seed growers should have warehouse receipts for their cleaned and graded seeds as soon as possible, so that the quantity of timothy seed available, together with the holders of warehouse certificates may be listed from week to week for the information of prospective buyers.

(4) The Chicago market virtually controls the world's prices for timothy seed. The freight rates on seed from Chicago to points in Eastern Canada, plus the import duty, are approximately equal to the prevailing freight rates between Alberta points and Toronto or Montreal.

The Secretary of the Calgary Grain Exchange has undertaken to procure the closing prices for timothy seed sent on the Chicago Grain Exchange from day to day and provide such information for general publication in Alberta daily newspapers.

The key to timothy's heart.—"A box of Liggett's Chemicals." "Your own heart's choice," sold exclusively by all Retail Drug Stores. Blaine's Drug Store.

The newspapers of Canada and particularly Western Canada are in a serious way for paper and ink, and there is no telling when the supply may be cut off. In colored ink the supply is rapidly diminishing. The pink likewise is nearing supply. Red ink has gone up 200 per cent, and even at this price it is difficult to get any quantity of it, while other colors such as yellow, greens and blues are not in the market. If the war has not last any length of time colored communications will be things of the past.

Notes by the Way

By "MINIMUS."

Americans are a peace loving people as a whole. But they must not stop up fighting. Talking to one the other day, he seemed to have the idea that England was a regular militarist country. He didn't like that, he said.
"Other Powers know better." "A nation of shopkeepers" was the jibe in Napoleonic days, and "we know how the Kaiser referred to our 'contemplable little army.'" I suppose before the war the Old Country had not much more than three or four hundred thousand men in her standing army.

Yes, I suppose at heart the Empire was commercial before the war. That was the Imperial ideal. But what about the Prussian ideal? When you get behind the scenes it seems pretty bad. Reading lately about Bernhard and Nietzsche, these are the people who have been training up young Germany's ideals. I think we can see the result of their teachings in the atrocities committed in Belgium.
Most of us, I suppose hold to the Christian ideal. Even if we don't practise we live by it theoretically, but listen to the leaders of German Culture.

Nietzsche the did in a limited asylum, "I condemn Christianity, and confront it with the most terrible accusation that a man has ever had in his mouth. To my mind it is the greatest of all conceivable corruptions.
I call Christianity the one greatest evil the one enormous and incurable poison." I call it the one immortal blame of mankind." Honest, anyhow!

It was what made Nietzsche mad.
He couldn't stand it. Power, Power, and Power again was his ideal. Here hardly back his own. To him was the ideal. It hindered nature, it made them vain. The weak must go to the wall. The cause of the war did not matter—"A good war" (he really well conducted bloody victory) "halloweth every cause." Good and evil say these great leaders have no meaning. They are the mere catch-words of those who follow a "glory morally"—Christianity. The only things that count are the things that lead to power.

Say what you like about the British Empire, these are not its sentiments.
We have traditions, and traditions count. Say, you people who want to make Canada a separate nation, what sort of an outfit of ideals and traditions are you going to set up for this young country?

Seems that too many men out west have left them all behind. The only ideal seems in many cases rather German—Power—at any price, by any crooked scheme. The weak are fair game. Well listen now.—Men who have thrown over all traditions won't do this country any good.
Men who have no definite Religion will be little better.

Fake Traditions, fake Creeds, and fake Ideals need men who hold true and real ones to fight them.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of August the twenty-fifth I noticed a reference to the Methodist parsonage.
But I would like to correct one state-the greater part of the time been done by the supporters of the church. When they could not come themselves they have Mr. G. Cropley, Mr. Maxwell or from completion and others have present to give a complete statement to the success of the undertaking.

I trust that at some not far distant

Weather Lore For Farmers

Unfailing Signs That Foretell the Changes of Weather

James K. Jerome's charmingly witty words of weather lore, as recommended by the humorist to write the weather if he wanted a subject absolutely new.

The weather is always new and always furnishing material for new and startling literature. It has been called the "great record-breaking machine."

How many winters go by that do not boast of the coldest night in twenty years? How many summers when the thermometer does not boil over its previous record? How many autumns achieved not less than forty years before? This season loses its title on the greatest rainfall since Confederation.

The strongest wind on the Atlantic Coast since the "Sally" gale blows every second year with the regularity of the equinox.

To the farmer, weather is second in importance to the soil, and even the soil. These two things are equal in the eyes of the farmer. In a bad season the best farm will furnish but indifferent harvests, while in a good season the barrenness of a barren becomes only more apparent.

The relative climatic conditions of any farm in Canada may be shown in a number of things. The most important are: (1) The height of the land above the mean average temperature. (2) Aspect. A southerly aspect is better than a northerly. (3) Shelter. High land will shelter more than low land. (4) Neanness to the sea. The nearer the sea, the less extreme is the temperature. (5) Prevailing wind. Biting breezes that feel like knives when the wind is easterly. The soil also looms large in the weather. The dry, cold winds prevail during the growing season.

A field not just only does it fall from night frosts than does a dry locality. (2) Color. A dark soil is better than a light one. The darker the soil the more heat it absorbs from the sun, and the better it retains it.

These points should all be considered in the selection of a farm, and in its treatment while under cultivation.

The farmer should take advantage quickly of any season. A cold day, a rainy day, a sunny day, a windy day. The nature of settled weather, and to forecast the weather, are matters of paramount importance.

The point cause of atmospheric disturbances is the unequal heating of heat over the earth's surface. The higher the temperature, the more the air at any particular place, the greater is the capacity for holding moisture. Any lowering of the temperature is followed by a condensation of the moisture, which appears as clouds and eventually as rain. The formation of rain from vapor is caused by the atmosphere is considered to be caused by the air being cooled in the air, at great elevations.

Weather is closely related to wind, which in turn is related to pressure and temperature. The atmospheric pressure at any particular place is about fifteen pounds per square inch. The barometer is a device which tells that it is not constant, but varies from time to time. This variation is a great extent determined by the wind. The wind is a great force to do good work as wireless operators.

In the latitude winds do not blow in a straight line, but in great spirals. Sometimes the wind is caused by a centre of low pressure, sometimes by a centre of high pressure, sometimes by a centre of low pressure.

When the barometric reading is high, the observer is in a high pressure area, and the centre of an outgoing spiral wind is far away. Here, as very little for the reason that the movement of the air is downward from the high pressure area.

The R.N.W.M.P. From coast to coast, the road of free captures made in Western Canada by the "mountain." Only a few days ago, a captured criminal was "carried" just south of this point. Northwest Mounted Police officers are at the present time preparing to start an expedition into the Arctic regions in search of Eskimos who murdered Radford and his party.

The trip, it is expected, will last for a week or more, and the prospects are nevertheless bright. The expedition is expected to be a successful one. The mounted police seldom or never let a murderer escape in their territory. The expedition is expected to be a successful one. The mounted police seldom or never let a murderer escape in their territory.

The meteorological department at Ottawa collects information on the weather. The department is expected to be a successful one. The mounted police seldom or never let a murderer escape in their territory.

The following signs are very often observed. Rapidly-moving clouds are a sign of weather change. Slowly-moving clouds are a sign of weather change.

Hard cold clouds are a sign of weather change. Soft clouds are a sign of weather change. The sun appearing in the sky is a sign of weather change.

A red sky indicates wind; a low sky indicates rain. A high sky indicates fair weather. A low sky indicates rain. A high sky indicates fair weather.

A misty morning in summer is followed by a fine warm day. A misty morning in winter is followed by a cold day. A misty morning in spring is followed by a warm day.

The Newspaper Man is Often Kept to Give Away His Stock

Nobody ever thinks of going to the coal dealer and asking him to send a little of his coal to the church or lodge room to heat up the building for a meeting or entertainment. Nor does one ask the ice cream man to donate ice cream for the occasion. But people often expect an advertising agent to do this.

If the coal dealer or the ice cream man or the electric light company should voluntarily donate coal, ice cream or lights, the recipients thereof would be exceedingly grateful, and would probably return the newspaper man to a free advertisement.

The editor very gladly gives a great deal of space to advertisements, and is not free advertising, especially of the reading public brand which is the highest the land the lowest the mean average temperature. (2) Aspect. A southerly aspect is better than a northerly. (3) Shelter. High land will shelter more than low land. (4) Neanness to the sea. The nearer the sea, the less extreme is the temperature. (5) Prevailing wind. Biting breezes that feel like knives when the wind is easterly. The soil also looms large in the weather. The dry, cold winds prevail during the growing season.

A field not just only does it fall from night frosts than does a dry locality. (2) Color. A dark soil is better than a light one. The darker the soil the more heat it absorbs from the sun, and the better it retains it.

These points should all be considered in the selection of a farm, and in its treatment while under cultivation.

The farmer should take advantage quickly of any season. A cold day, a rainy day, a sunny day, a windy day. The nature of settled weather, and to forecast the weather, are matters of paramount importance.

The point cause of atmospheric disturbances is the unequal heating of heat over the earth's surface. The higher the temperature, the more the air at any particular place, the greater is the capacity for holding moisture. Any lowering of the temperature is followed by a condensation of the moisture, which appears as clouds and eventually as rain. The formation of rain from vapor is caused by the atmosphere is considered to be caused by the air being cooled in the air, at great elevations.

Weather is closely related to wind, which in turn is related to pressure and temperature. The atmospheric pressure at any particular place is about fifteen pounds per square inch. The barometer is a device which tells that it is not constant, but varies from time to time. This variation is a great extent determined by the wind. The wind is a great force to do good work as wireless operators.

In the latitude winds do not blow in a straight line, but in great spirals. Sometimes the wind is caused by a centre of low pressure, sometimes by a centre of high pressure, sometimes by a centre of low pressure.

When the barometric reading is high, the observer is in a high pressure area, and the centre of an outgoing spiral wind is far away. Here, as very little for the reason that the movement of the air is downward from the high pressure area.

Tommy's French Bride

How Naturally Entente Marriage Alliances Are Fostered.

Frederick Palmer writes from the British headquarters in France: One of the results of the presence of the British army in France is that a good many British soldiers will take to the wives whom they meet. The difference in language, far from being a bar, is an accessory.

Mr. Akins French teaches Miss France English and Miss France teaches Mr. Akins French. There is plenty of leisure for the courtship to develop. Frequently British lullabies remain in the wives' ears for months on end.

When the French men folk away, Mr. Akins lends a hand with any heavy work that requires a man's strength. He may never come back, but a British soldier driving a harrow. A feminine hand does not seem or cooking for him in return.

The romantic atmosphere is not lacking. When the British say "adieu" to their sweetheart and starts for the front, he may never come back, but he is going to fight for France. The British soldier is a man of his word.

The Non-Combatant Corps

Working With the Hands Was New to British's Conscientious

Frederick Palmer writes from the British headquarters in France: Unique among all the variegated units of the armies on the continent is the British Non-Combatant Corps, or otherwise the "Conscientious Objectors," who do not want to fight and are not expected to fight. Not fear, but conscience, is their reason for being excused. Before the war in England, where individual rights are so strongly recognized, the Quakers were not required to bear arms because it was against his religious principles. When conscription was applied another class arose. They said that they had conscientious scruples against the taking of life.

When the French men folk away, Mr. Akins lends a hand with any heavy work that requires a man's strength. He may never come back, but a British soldier driving a harrow. A feminine hand does not seem or cooking for him in return.

Dog That Won The V. C.

Jack, the Famous Pet of the Guards, Is Honored.

One of the most famous Jackals, who was found, when a poor little pup, by the sergeant-major, St. James' Palace, Snow was on the ground at the time, and the dog had evidently been ill-treated, so the sentry, touched, picked him up and fed him. The dog eventually became very much attached to the sentry, whose regiment, the Scots Guards, adopted the animal as a pet.

Jack went all through the Crimean War, fighting tooth and nail by the side of his master and once going as far as to save his life. One of the enemy came at the erstwhile sentry with his gun, but Jack went for him. Jack was killed at Inkerman. When the regiment came home, Jack was the only dog to be mentioned in the story that she had a mate, Victoria Cross made, which she presented to the gallant little animal, together with the Crimean medals.

The War's History

How Much Do We Know About The Great Struggle.

How much do we know about the war we imagine ourselves to be seeing? It is a question that has been asked many times. The war has been going on for over four years, and yet we know very little about it. The war has been going on for over four years, and yet we know very little about it.
